Regional Outlook: Franchising & Licensing on the Rise

According to Baker McKenzie (link), Southeast Asia, India, and China remain among the top franchise growth markets, propelled by rising middle-class incomes and urbanisation. Brands are increasingly adopting to multi-unit and master franchise agreements for rapid expansion, while digital transformation from Al-powered marketing to operations automation, and customer analytics are becoming baseline requirements for scalable franchise models.

Research and Markets (link) forecasts Asia-Pacific's fast-food sector to grow from USD 270 billion in 2024 to USD 465 billion by 2033. Global giants like McDonald's, Domino's, KFC, and Subway, alongside local innovators, are adapting their menus, embracing sustainable packaging, and leveraging techenabled formats to win over diverse consumer bases, especially in tier-2 and tier-3 cities, where franchising offers capital-efficient expansion.

The licensing sector is also gaining momentum, with experiential retail driving growth through mall activations, pop-ups, and immersive brand experiences. Sophisticated collaborations and cross-category launches are deepening consumer engagement and opening new revenue streams, according to (link) License Global.
